Ticats to Oshawa?

► Councillor hopes Canadian Football League team will move from Hamilton ► Would be renamed Oshawa Titans could become the Oshawa Titans if a local councillor can persuade his colleagues to offer the CFL team a new home.

News

With the Tiger-Cats poised to leave Hamilton over a dispute about a new stadium, Robert Lutczyk is proposing to build it in Oshawa.

The facility would be built for the 2015 Pan Am Games' soccer matches, then become the permanent home of the Tiger-Cats, renamed Titans, if Lutczyk has his way.

"An opportunity has presented itself," an excited Lutczyk said Thursday, noting team owner Bob Young has told Hamilton council

"(The public) is really excited because this is the big leagues."

they're leaving the city.

"We've got to have a formal position to say, 'Look at us, don't pass Oshawa by in this.'"

Lutczyk proposes to build the stadium on a privately owned 36-hectare site north of Highway 401 between Thickson and Stevenson roads.

The location, which is close to GO and Via transit, would draw 1 million people from an area bordered by Pickering, Peterborough and Kingston, he said.

"It fits the bill (Young) is looking for to a T and more," he said, adding Oshawa would act as the facilitator in a deal involving the land owner, the Pan Am Games, Tiger-Cats and CFL.

Lutczyk plans to discuss the idea at a council committee meeting Monday.

'Harsh reality'

- Tiger-Cats owner Bob Young recently pulled out of negotiations for a new stadium after failing to reach an agreement with Hamilton on the site.
- He said the "harsh reality" is the team won't be in Hamilton after next year.

TTC to vote on new HQ building Friday

The Toronto Transit Commission will decide at a special meeting Friday whether to proceed with the lease of a new headquarters at Yonge Street and York Mills Road.

The new office space, being developed by Build Toronto, the city's arm's-length real estate corporation, would be located on TTC property and replace the transit agency's Davisville headquarters.

If the commission approves the framework for an agreement, it will still have at least 30 days to iron out financial and other details.

City councillors on the transit commission will discuss the matter behind closed doors, as all city real estate business is conducted privately.

The idea is to consolidate all of the TTC's 1,300 office employees under one roof. Only about 300 work at the Davisville headquarters, which needs about $30 million in renovations, according to spokesperson Brad Ross. The rest are scattered in seven offices around the city with leases that cost about $8.6 million annually.

► Carlene Clarke's 18-year-old son, Shane Walters, was one of four people shot Wednesday night.

Two shootings in 28 hours

► Police refuse to comment on any possible gang links ► Recent deaths in the area have been more about vengeance than turf wars, officer says

Carlene Clarke's five-year-old granddaughter asked her a puzzled question Thursday morning: "How come Shane died and now he's alive?" The night before, the little girl had seen Clarke's son, Shane Walters, lying on the kitchen floor in a pool of blood.

The 18-year-old was one of four men shot Wednesday night behind Clarke's home in a Toronto Community Housing complex near Weston Road and Black Creek Drive.

Walters was shot in the legs, with a bullet passing through both calves.

No, Clarke replied to her granddaughter, Shane did not die last night. But he came close.

Clarke doesn't know the names of her son's friends, but police say a 19-year-old male was shot in the chest and a 17-year-old male suffered two gunshots to the face. A fourth man with a gunshot wound walked into a nearby hospital shortly after the incident but he would not tell police how he had been hurt.

The gunfight behind Clarke's home was the second of two shootings to occur within 28 hours in

Investigations

► No charges have yet been laid in connection with the two shootings.

► A description has been released of a suspect for Malcolm's murder, however. Police are looking for a black male in his early 20s with a muscular build and short hair. He stands about six feet tall.

Toronto's northwest end. Tuesday night, Randy Anthony Malcolm, 24, was fatally shot in the head just a few kilometres away on Cather Crescent, a Lawrence Heights neighbourhood also populated by public housing units. Officers found a second man nearby with a gunshot wound in his shoulder.

In 2008, Malcolm, a.k.a. Wheezy, was wanted by police on attempted murder charges.

Det. Chris Neal acknowledged his killing was probably due to a larger territorial dispute, but stopped short of calling the incident gang-related.

Toyota recalls more vehicles

Toyota is recalling more than 1.3 million Corolla sedans and Matrix hatchbacks continuing the string of quality problems that have hit the reputation of the world's largest automaker.

The announcement Thursday, over engine problems that could cause the vehicles to stall, affects more than 1.1 million cars in the United States and 200,000 in Canada sold in the 2005-2008 model years, the carmaker said.

Toyota Canada said it will recall approximately 136,000 Corollas and 64,300 Matrixes to address problems with the engine control modules, the computer that regulates the performance of the engine. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Police seeking 'most prolific' G20 vandals

► Officer confident suspects from New York will be extradited for trial

Just days after charges were dropped or settled in 73 G20-related cases, Toronto police are appealing for the public's help to track down the "worst of the worst offenders."

"These are the most prolific individuals in terms of damage done to the city," Det.-Sgt. Gary Giroux said at police headquarters Thursday.

Giroux is confident any charges laid against these individuals won't be dropped because police have a massive amount of photographic evidence — about 28,000 still images and as many as 600 videos.

Twenty people have already been arrested by Giroux's team since the G20 summit in late June. They face a total of 60 charges.

Tories: Politics as usual for Ontario Grits

- Records show lucrative contracts awarded to insiders
- Liberals say Conservatives did the same previously

Ontario's Liberal government is again rewarding party insiders with lucrative consulting contracts while local health networks are also doling out cash to consultants, the Opposition charged Thursday.

Public accounts show the Liberal caucus services fund paid $100,000 to Liberal party vice-president Christine McMillan and $400,000 to polling firm Pollara, whose former president, Don Guy, is Premier Dalton McGuinty's campaign manager.

Another consulting firm, Arrow Communications, whose president Marcel Wider co-ordinates Liberal-friendly campaign ads, received $223,000 from the $400,000

Amount Liberal caucus services fund paid polling firm Pollara, whose former president was Premier Dalton McGuinty's campaign manager.

"Rewarding Liberal friends and insiders with cushy, untendered contracts is bad enough; using Ontario families' hard-earned money to pay Dalton McGuinty's campaign team is an insulting violation of the public trust," said Progressive Conservative critic Lisa MacLeod.

"The Liberal culture of entitlement has got to stop."

The Tories said the consulting contracts are proof the Liberals didn't learn anything from last year's scandal at eHealth Ontario, where more than $1 billion was wasted, much of it on untendered contracts for consultants.

The Liberals said all parties use their caucus budgets to hire outside communications help, but they did not address the issue of Guy's company getting a $400,000 contract from the Liberals before he left Pollara to again run a Liberal election campaign.

Sleep with the boss, get ahead, study finds

▶ 15% of executive women admit having an affair with a superior

Apparently, sex with the boss can still help a woman get ahead. But companies and the individuals involved pay a high price, according to new research.

Some 15 per cent of executive women surveyed by the New York-based Center for Work-Life Policy admit to having an affair with a superior.

And 37 per cent of the women believe such liaisons pay off in the form of promotions and other perks, the study also found.

The question was asked as part of a wider study that looks at the role a boss can play in promoting a woman's career by recommending her for key assignments.

The non-profit think-tank conducts research and works with employers to develop policies that promote work-life balance.

The full study isn't due out until later this fall, but centre president Sylvia Ann Hewlett leaked selected findings in her blog this week in the Harvard Business Review online.

The chances of a woman getting to the corner suite are slim without a high-ranking sponsor who can guide and promote them, Hewlett notes.

► Toronto Police Det.-Sgt. Savas Kyriacou led project Green Apple, the probe into the shooting death of Jane Creba.

Sentences handed down in Creba case

Two men convicted of manslaughter in the fatal Boxing Day shooting of 15-year-old Jane Creba were sentenced Thursday to 12 years in prison.

But with a credit of eight years and five months, Louis Woodcock, 23, and Tyshaun Barnett, 22, will only serve three years and seven months.

Both men served four years and 11 weeks in pre-trial custody.

Creba was killed while she was shopping with her family in downtown Toronto on Boxing Day in 2005.

Jeremiah Valentine and Jorrell Simpson-Rowe have already been found guilty of second-degree murder in the shootout and were sentenced to life in prison. A youth was found not guilty of manslaughter.

Toronto Det.-Sgt. Savas Kyriacou said outside court police are "very happy" with the outcome of the prosecutions in the case.

Health report earns all-party backing

Ontario's "fractured" system for dealing with those struggling with mental health and addiction problems needs a "radical transformation" if people are to receive the help they need, according to a new report backed by members of all three major political parties.

In a rare show of unity,

Liberal, Conservative and NDP politicians banded together Thursday to urge the legislature to take action on mental health and addiction, including the creation of a new umbrella organization to co-ordinate mental health and addictions systems.

The agency, called Mental Health and Addictions Ontario, would report to the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care and would be responsible for designing, managing and co-ordinating the system to ensure that services are delivered consistently across the province, the all-party committee said.

The committee's members spent 18 months developing the action plan.

Hottest year ever? It just might be

► La Nina winter means more northern air and Arctic air ► This leads to cooler than normal conditions

Canada is on track to have the hottest year on record by far — if La Nina doesn't blow it.

From January through July, it's been 3.5 degrees warmer than normal, says Environment Canada's David Phillips.

That's considerably warmer than the record set in 1998, when temperatures hovered almost 2.5 degrees higher than normal for the whole year across the country.

"Unless we get into a big deep freeze from September on, this one certainly looks like it will be the warmest of all," Phillips said.

Models forecast this year's trend will continue, with Central and Eastern Canada breaking records ► Brothers Mohammed, 10, and Yousef Othman, 3, cool off in the fountain at Dundas Square earlier this summer.

for the warmest September and October.

The 1998 record was set even though a La Nina formed that year.

This year, the same weather phenomenon developed in July as the waters of the central Pacific Ocean cooled.

La Nina usually brings cooler weather to Western Canada. But Phillips said he believes it won't have a dampening enough effect to keep 2010 out of the record books.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coast to coast

► The stretch from Manitoba to Newfoundland, and most of the north, should expect to be warmer than usual in September.

► Normal to wetter than normal conditions are forecast in the East.

► The growing season is ahead in the East by two to three weeks but is behind in the West.

► Prairie farmers have had a miserable growing season and need a warm September like last year to salvage a decent growing season, Phillips said.

► Phillips guarantees we won't have a winter like last year, when it was four degrees warmer than usual.

► That was an El Nino winter. It was the warmest, mildest and driest winter on record in 63 years.

Tories keeping a tight lid on the truth: MP

- Liberal MP promises bill to restore long-form census
- CBC: RCMP report concludes gun registry is important

The Harper government has adopted a deliberate strategy of hiding information from Canadians in order to advance a right-wing social and justice agenda, Liberals charge.

Liberal MP John McCallum pointed Thursday to two recent examples to prove the point: The government's decision to scrap the mandatory long-form census and its refusal to release a favourable report on the effectiveness of the long-gun registry.

He called the approach "a triumph of ignorance over knowledge, a triumph of ideology over science."

McCallum said the decision to turn the compulsory long-form census into a voluntary survey is "one of the most visible examples of one of the most fundamental shortcomings" of the Harper government.

He said it's aimed at robbing federal, provincial and municipal governments of the reliable data they need to deliver progressive social programs.

He cited the government's refusal to release the annual RCMP evaluation of the gun registry, which opposition parties claim the government has been sitting on for six months, as another example of Harper's penchant for stifling facts.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Political shakeup?

- RCMP Asst. Commissioner Pierre Perron, the newly-appointed head of the national firearms program, said Thursday the gun-registry report is currently being translated and will be made available as soon as it is done.
- Perron was chosen last week to replace Marty Cheliak, a defender of the registry whose removal was seen by opposition parties as another example of the government suppressing dissent.
- The government denied it had anything to do with Cheliak's reassignment.

Arrests are a reminder: PM

► Prime Minister Stephen Harper

Touring the Arctic on Thursday, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said the arrests of three suspects should remind Canadians that they face real threats.

"The networks that threaten us are worldwide, they exist not only in remote countries but they have — through globalization and through the Internet — they have links through our country and all through the world," Harper said.

"These things will continue to be challenges but we will continue to work with our police and security agencies to ensure they have the resources to track these threats and respond appropriately and hopefully in all cases before any serious damage is done."

Meanwhile, The Muslim Canadian Congress commended the RCMP.

"But we hope that the accused will be tried with due process, the presumption of innocence, and with full guarantees that their constitutional rights will be protected," said Salma Siddiqui, the group's vice-president.

She expressed dismay at the possibility an al-Qaida-inspired terrorist plot was being hatched in Canada's capital. "It's very frustrating and quite disappointing," THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three charged in terrorist plot

► The RCMP says the suspects 'posed a real and serious threat to the citizens of the National Capital Region and Canada's national security'

An alleged domestic terror plot that reached from a quiet, west-end Ottawa neighbourhood to Iran, Dubai, Pakistan and the killing fields of Afghanistan has been busted following a year of surveillance, police said Thursday.

Three men, all Canadian citizens, are in custody after an investigation by 100 Mounties with the assistance of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, the Canadian Border Services Agency, the Sûreté du Québec and police in Ottawa and London, Ont.

Their arrests came after police seized more than 50 electronic circuit boards they allege were designed to be remote detonators for bombs, as well as terrorist literature and bomb-related documents.

Ahmed is an X-ray technician at an Ottawa hospital. The Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons web site says a Khurram Syed Sher is a McGill University graduate who is an anatomical pathologist at St. Thomas Elgin General Hospital in St. Thomas, Ont., just south of London.

Alizadeh studied English as an additional language and electrical engineering technology at Red River College in Winnipeg.

The investigation, known as Project Samossa, continues, with the Mounties refusing to provide anything but bare-bones details of the case.

RCMP Chief Supt. Serge Theriault said investigators seized "schematics, videos, drawings, instructions, books and electrical components designed specifically for the construction of improvised explosive devices or IEDs."

Taliban warns against helping flood victims

▶ Group carried out a suicide attack against the office of the UN's World Food Program in Islamabad last year

The Taliban hinted Thursday it may launch attacks against foreigners helping Pakistan respond to the worst floods in the country's history, saying their presence was "unacceptable." The UN said it would not be deterred by violent threats.

The militant group has attacked aid workers in the country before, and an outbreak of violence could complicate a relief effort that has already struggled to reach the 8 million people who are in need of emergency assistance.

Foreign countries have pledged nearly $800 million and provided aid workers to help Pakistan cope with floods that began almost a month ago.

spokesman Azam Tariq claimed the U.S. and other countries that have pledged support are not really focused on providing aid to flood victims but had other motives he did not specify.

"Behind the scenes they have certain intentions, but on the face they are talking of relief and help," Tariq told The Associated Press by telephone from an undisclosed location. "No relief is reaching the affected people, and when the victims are not receiving help, then this horde of foreigners is not acceptable to us at all."

He strongly hinted the militants could resort to violence, saying "when we say something is unacceptable to us, one can draw one's own conclusion."

Colonel waives right to preliminary hearing

The former commander of Canada's largest military airfield was committed Thursday to stand trial on murder, sex assault and break and enter charges.

Col. Russell Williams was a rising star in the military before being charged in February with first-degree murder in the deaths of Jessica Lloyd, 27, and Cpl. Marie-France Comeau, 37.

On Thursday, the former commander of CFB Trenton waived his right to a preliminary hearing, which is held to determine whether there is enough evidence to move forward to trial.

His next appearance is set for Oct. 7 in Ontario Superior Court.

Lloyd's brother, Andy Lloyd, 30, said after months of brief video appearances that are just adjourned, he's glad there is

The allegations have not been proven in court and Williams has not yet filed a statement of defence.

- ▶ In addition to the murder charges, Williams faces various charges in sex assaults against other women, and 82 other charges related to break and enter, some of which reportedly involved lingerie.
- ▶ The Crown made some minor amendments to six charges, including changing one count to break and enter from attempted break and enter.
- ▶ In addition, Williams and his wife, Mary-Elizabeth Harriman, are facing a $2.45-million lawsuit filed by one of Williams' alleged sex assault victims, identified only as Jane Doe. The 21-year-old woman claims the "horrific and reprehensible" alleged sexual attack has left her fearful and suicidal.

Congo calls for military assistance

Congo's army needs more international help to prevent brutal rebel attacks such as the recent mass gang-raping in eastern Congo, a government spokesman said Thursday.

The information minister charged the United Nations exaggerates the amount of rape in Congo and said its top official for sexual violence in conflict is wrong to call the country the "rape capital of the world." Lambert Mende also said Congo's army needs more on-the-ground support for its security forces.

Fortis to build B.C. hydro plant

Canada's largest private-sector power company plans to build a $900-million hydroelectric plant in southern British Columbia with two provincial agencies as partners.

Fortis Inc. of St. John's, N.L., will own 51 per cent of the hydro plant, known as the Waneta Expansion, which will supply BC Hydro and sell surplus electricity to an unregulated market.

The project near Trail, B.C., is being led by Fortis in partnership with the government-owned Columbia Power Corporation and Columbia Basin Trust.

The project will bring about 400 jobs and $200 million in wages and benefits to the region, according to B.C. Energy Minister Bill Bennett, who represents a riding in the region.

"This agreement is the result of a tremendous amount of hard work and co-operation from all the parties involved," Bennett said in a statement Thursday.

Former Bush aide comes out of closet

► Advocate says Mehlman has work cut out for him to show gay community he's contrite after years in GOP

News that a former campaign chairman for George W. Bush is gay and now a champion for same-sex marriage is pleasing, angering and perplexing gay rights activists and politicians alike in the United States.

Ken Mehlman, Bush's campaign kingpin in 2004 and one-time chairman of the Republican National Committee, has announced he's gay and is helping to raise significant funds in support of same-sex marriage. This despite presiding over an election strategy that pushed anti-same sex marriage amendments in 11 states just six years ago.

"At least for me, it wasn't like there was a light-bulb moment," he said in an interview with The Atlantic magazine released earlier this week.

"It was an evolutionary process ... The process has been something that has made me a happier and better person. It's something I wish I had done years ago."

Many welcomed the announcement, saying it proves the time has come for marriage equality in the United States.

"He's the latest in a wave of self-identified conservatives speaking up in support of the freedom to marry," said Evan Wilson, author of Why Marriage Matters and director of the

► In an interview with The Advocate, a magazine oriented toward the gay community, Mehlman said he understands there's still enduring resentment.

► "I have a lot of friends who ask questions and who are angry about it. I understand that folks are angry, I don't know that you can change the past," he said. "One thing I regret a lot is the fact that I wasn't in the position I am today where I was comfortable with this part of my life ... I can't change that."

'ABDICATING CORE PARTY BELIEFS'

Not all Republicans are as accepting of same-sex marriage as Ken Mehlman.

Brian Brown, president of the National Organization for Marriage, told the gay publication The Advocate that Mehlman was "abdicating core Republican beliefs" in supporting an effort to challenge California's anti-same-sex marriage law.

Brown added that same-sex marriage advocates were using high-profile conservatives to "create an impression that there is an inevitability to same-sex marriage. The facts strongly go against that idea."

On August 29, 2005, hurricane Katrina hit the U.S. Gulf Coast. New Orleans, the jazz mecca, became a site of devastation and human misery. But now the city is back on its feet — tens of billions of dollars later

ELISABETH
BRAW
METRO WORLD NEWS

Patricia McElveen knows no other home than New Orleans. She was born and raised in the city's Lower Ninth Ward, and she remained there when she got married and had children. But on Aug. 28, 2005, she left.

"My family and I followed the city's mandatory evacuation order", she says. "We had reached Texas when Katrina hit the next day. My son called and said 'Your house has 20 feet of water.' It was devastating."

More than 1,400 people were killed by Katrina, which left 80 per cent of New Orleans under water.

Washington called Katrina "probably the worst catastrophe, or set of catastrophes" in the country's history.

"The initial reaction was total shock," recalls Laura Claverie, a magazine writer living in an upscale neighbourhood.

"Here was one of the most beautiful, historic cities in the U.S., and 160,000 homes were destroyed. There were National Guardsmen on every corner, protecting the city. I will love those brave, caring soldiers forever!"

Some 25,000 residents unable to follow the evacuation order were housed at the Superdome, a giant sports arena that soon became a centre of human misery when it lost both water and power.

One month after the hurricane, Patricia McElveen and her husband, Wendell, returned.

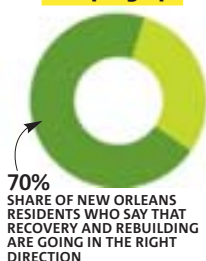

"The city was gloomy and lifeless," says Wendell.

"Nobody knew what to do. What most people outside New Orleans never realized is that the Lower Abandoned homes are seen in the Lower Ninth Ward as the moon rises last week in New Orleans, La.

Shaping up

Ninth Ward didn't just have poor desperate people.

"There were many stable families and business owners as well. Katrina ruined their lives, too."

The couple and their children chose to stay in McKinney, Texas. Many other residents made the same choice: Between 2005 and 2006, the city lost more than half if its 455,000 residents.

Five years and tens of billions of dollars later, New Orleans is a different city.

Eighty per cent of its residents have returned.

Companies are being created at a faster pace than in the rest of the U.S.

In the past five years the average income grew by nearly 14 per cent.

"We have a great new mayor, police chief and city council," says Claverie.

"We still have a long way to go in rebuilding many homes and neighbourhoods and our levees, but we're going in the right direction."

And the Lower Ninth Ward? It's trying to transform itself into a cutting-edge green community.

KATRINA HURT ANIMALS, TOO

LEAVING PETS 'WASN'T A GOOD IDEA'

Prof. Leslie Irvine, University of Colorado, is an expert on animal welfare during disasters.

You participated in the animal rescue after hurricane Katrina. What did you see?

The rescue centre I worked in had five barns housing over 5,000 dogs, along with cats, horses and other animals. During the day it was reasonably calm, but in the evenings the search and rescue team would bring in more animals they had found, and all the animals would get nervous.

Leslie Irvine rescued animals after Katrina.

Hearing several thousand dogs bark is unlike anything else I've ever heard.

How calm were the animals?

Mostly the problem was boredom. Sometimes we gave the dogs bones to chew on, but when they're nervous that can result in diarrhea, which is not a good thing in a crowded barn!

I'm not sure the mandatory order for New Orleans residents to leave their pets behind was a good idea.

Many of the pets were later adopted to good-willing people around the country, and now their owners want them back.

As a result there are many lawsuits over Katrina pets.

North Korean leader surfaces in China again

- ▶ Chinese VP reportedly plans to meet with Kim Jong Il
- ▶ Meeting with ex-U.S. president Carter also possible

North Korean dictator Kim Jong Il has turned up in China in a strangely timed visit for the reclusive leader while former U.S. president Jimmy Carter is in North Korea trying to win the release of an imprisoned American.

It marked Kim's second trip to China in three months — unusual for a man who never flies and travels only by armoured train.

South Korean media and regional analysts said he may be seeking Chinese aid following flooding in his impoverished country's northwest — and could be laying the diplomatic groundwork for the succession of his son, who is thought to be travelling with him.

In any case, it was unclear whether he would return in time for a meeting with Carter, an elder statesman well-regarded in North Korea despite the two countries' longtime animosity. Carter met with Kim's father, late president Kim Il Sung, on his last trip to Pyongyang in 1994 — a warm meeting that led to a landmark nuclear disarmament deal.

Neither country announced the trip; Kim's travels typically are not publicized by North Korea until after his return.

But his stop in Jilin city in northeastern China was confirmed by two teachers at the Yuwen Middle School, a school Kim's father once attended.

Philippine prez: 'Someone will pay' for bungling

► Tough words from leader over handling of deadly hostage crisis ► China presses for full investigation

The Philippine president vowed Thursday to punish authorities who bungled a bus hostage crisis that killed eight Hong Kong tourists, toughening his stance after Asian powerhouse China expressed outrage and political rivals pummelled him with criticism.

The nearly 12-hour hostage drama stunned even the violence-prone nation and delivered the first major crisis to President Benigno Aquino III less than two months into his six-year term.

Also on Thursday, the Philippine Senate began an inquiry into the hostage fiasco.

"Someone failed. Someone will pay," Aquino said during a speech before students and faculty at a Manila university. He called the carnage "ghastly" and admitted there were "many failures."

► Philippine President Benigno Aquino III

Philippine officials have acknowledged the economic backlash on the Philippines after Hong Kong authorities urged its citizens not to travel to the country.

About 140,000 Hong Kong tourists visit the Philippines yearly. Philippine Airlines said in a statement that at least 558 tourists from Hong Kong and China have cancelled their bookings.

Concerns also were raised about the fate and safety of more than 100,000 Filipinos working in Hong Kong, mostly as maids, who contributed to the $17.3 billion sent home in 2009 by about 9 million overseas Filipinos — remittances that help keep the economy afloat.

That's a costly table dance for Caesars Palace

Nevada's state gaming commission has fined Caesars Palace $250,000 for allowing a high-limit baccarat player to dance on its Las Vegas casino card table while the game was being played.

The Las Vegas Sun newspaper reports that Caesars Palace agreed to the fine announced this week by the state Gaming Control Board.

Final gaming commission approval is expected next month.

The board filed a complaint accusing the Caesars Palace casino of failing to take action to protect the game and the customer.

Caesars Palace admits a player in the high-limit baccarat room climbed onto the table three times last Oct. 10 and even placed a bet while standing on the table.

Fugitive tycoon returns to U.K. to face music

► Nadir's family once among richest in Britain ► Fled for Cyprus in 1993 after company filed for bankruptcy

A tycoon who fled Britain almost two decades ago following the spectacular collapse of his business empire returned to London Thursday to face charges of fraud.

Asil Nadir, 69, never faced the prospect of being taken back to Britain by force: The self-proclaimed Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus where he had fled to isn't recognized by Britain and has no extradition treaty with the U.K.

Britain's Serious Fraud Office said it had worked out bail conditions with Nadir's lawyers — including a £250,000 (about $390,000 US) surety.

Asked why he was giving up a comfortable life in northern Cyprus with his 26-year-old wife to face trial, the Turkish Cypriot businessman told Sky News television that he was eager to see justice done.

Nadir, the son of a wealthy Cypriot, came to England in the 1960s and set up an east London clothing company that grew into an international conglomerate.

His company's share price collapsed after investigators began probing irregularities in Nadir family trusts.

SOLO SAILOR

Teen in Canary Islands

A 14-year-old Dutch sailor aiming to become the youngest person to sail solo around the world says she has reached Spain's Canary Islands off northwest Africa and plans to stay there for a while.

The message appeared on Laura

She is expected to stay in the Canary Islands while waiting for the Atlantic storm season to abate. During her stay she will be able to catch up on her schoolwork, receive family visits and install cameras on her yacht for a film to be made of the voyage.

Laura set off from Gibraltar Aug. 21.

Student credit cards called risky safety net

MARK LENNIHAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Campus life

Students often find themselves in tough financial situations as they struggle to pay extra costs associated with their education, says Dave Molenhuis, chairman for the Canadian Federation of Students.

Campus financial aid administrators can offer emergency bursaries for students in a bind. Student unions can sometimes act on their behalf, too.

► Students in need often talked into getting a credit card ► Kiosks offer gifts as incentive to sign up

Students won't be the only ones flocking to university campuses in a few weeks.

Kiosks promoting various student-branded credit cards have become a ubiquitous sight during many orientation-week festivities, often waving free T-shirts and other swag to help lure potential customers.

While credit cards can provide a certain degree of security and flexibility for students, experts say there's a lot young adults need to know before they get into plastic.

Michelle Duke, head of client strategy with Royal Bank of Canada, said students need to understand what purpose a credit card serves before they sign up for one.

"Credit cards are there for purchases that can be paid off on a monthly basis," she said. "It's not to carry credit card debt, because it's an expensive way to carry debt and you certainly don't want to fund your education costs with a credit card."

Parents can arrange for their children to have a "family card," in which the kid gets a slice of the family's total credit limit.

"It gives the student access to a credit card, but it also keeps them living within certain parameters," Duke said.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

► Experts say it's better for students to sit down with a parent or financial adviser and thoroughly consider all options — something a credit card kiosk won't offer.

Canadians take home more bacon

Canadians have been bringing home more money each week than they did during the downturn, when jobs and workers' hours were slashed, but economists warn a return to recession in the U.S. could derail rising incomes.

Statistics Canada reported Thursday that the average weekly earnings of employees rose by four per cent in June from a year earlier to $853.50. That's the largest year-over-year increase since February 2008 and the seventh straight month in which the year-over-year increase was at or above 2.3 per cent.

But much of the weekly earnings increases can be attributed to employees on hourly wages working more hours as employers boost output, said Andrew Jackson, chief economist at the Canadian Labour Congress. Total hours worked by hourly and salaried employees increased by 0.1

During the recession, employers cut spending on wages and salaries by $9.5 billion, resulting in the loss of some 400,000 jobs. But nearly all of those lost jobs have been made up in a spate of hiring in recent months.

per cent in June, the fifth advance in six months.

Average weekly hours worked by hourly and salaried employees amounted to 32.9 hours in June, unchanged from May.

During the recovery, wages have increased by about two per cent — just in line with the pace of inflation, Jackson said.

Weekly earnings will grow by 3.4 per cent this year and 4.2 per cent in 2011, Desjardins Group predicted in a report.

NO TAX ON AVATARS

Other people's money

Tired of paying taxes? Grab an axe and go spill some blood ... Virtually.

In an article published two years ago, I told the story of a young Montrealer who earned $3,000 a month selling virtual dresses and T-shirts to players of Second Life. In this online game, millions of people walk avatars (virtual selves) into nightclubs and other imaginary places. They pay real dollars to buy their avatars a sexy haircut, a little cat, a house ... even a penis!

Meanwhile, "gold farmers" in China spend their days slashing monsters with their swords and stealing their gold pieces in World of Warcraft. These gold pieces are then sold over the Internet to other players who need them to progress in the game. Estimated profit: $2,000 US per day.

Two years later, what has changed? "Second Life has slowed down a bit, but Facebook games like FarmVille are exploding!" says Michèle Blanc, senior partner at Analyweb. Last year, 70 million people (your friends?) spent $500 million US to feed non-existent pigs and decorate their virtual farms.

A parallel economy is growing at a breakneck pace. From $800 million US two years ago, the annual value of goods traded in virtual worlds on the Internet has now reached $1.5 billion. At the current exchange rate of 200 per U.S. dollar, the World of Warcraft gold coin is faring better than most South American currencies.

In this day and age, a three-headed virtual rabbit can be more productive than most human beings. Edward Castronova, an economist at Indiana University and an expert on virtual worlds, has calculated the value of all goods — magic swords, armour, etc. — created and traded by players in the realm of Norrath, a region of the game EverQuest. GDP per capita: $2,280 US. Average hourly wage: $3.42. These figures put the economy of Norrath above those of China and India.

The United States and Canada do not tax flying castles, or dresses made of pixels. "The U.S. government has been trying for the past five years to seek ways to tax these transactions. But the IRS has no rule of procedure for virtual goods," says Castronova. "It's too weird for them, and doesn't fit into any categories."

Thousands of new web entrepreneurs rejoice. For once, bureaucrats put spokes in their own wheels.

David Descôteaux is a freelance economic journalist and an associate researcher

RBC's $1.2B not enough for investors

Royal Bank of Canada shares tumbled nearly three per cent Thursday after its third-quarter earnings fell 18 per cent, affected by a major drop in profits from its capital markets division.

Its stock slipped $1.49 to $49.20 on the Toronto Stock Exchange shortly after the opening bell.

Royal said it earned $1.28 billion in the three months ended July 31, down from a record $1.56 billion last year.

► Jemini

5 MINUTES WITH: JEMINI

She's a poet, radio host, recording artist, activist and now Jemini has wrapped up another season as a celebrity judge at Apollo-style talent competition Lymé and Tings.

How was your experience this season?

It was amazing. We were really able to see the progression as far as talent was concerned. It was harder and harder to whittle it down because everyone walked in so talented already.

Favourite part about being a judge?

There are so many things! Probably that first day when you see people performing and you wonder what genre they're even going to do, whether they're good or not. Although my very, very, very favourite part is after the competition when you make connections with the artists.

Are you more of a Simon or a Paula?

(Laughs) No one really wants to be the Paula, but I'm a Paula. I know how hard it is to be on stage and be judged. I really try to speak to people in a way that I would want to be spoken to, so, for me it's not about clowning someone or embarrassing someone or showing how much

I know. I'm really trying to help them.

You're something of a Renaissance woman yourself. Is there anything you haven't done yet that you'd like to master?

Yes! Taking over the world. (Laughs) The one thing I haven't finished or mastered is a full novel. I'm kind of a perfectionist, so that holds me back a bit. And as soon as I achieve that, I've got to find the other thing. I would never want to be asked that question and be like, "No, I'm good." I always want to have that next thing that I can master.

Looking at the writing you have published, it's a very interesting mix between a real literary sensibility and a pulse on what's happening outside. How did you cultivate that voice?

For me it's not so much in finding my voice, it's in being respectful enough to actually allow myself that voice, and to be quiet enough and silent enough and reverent enough to listen to it when it speaks to me. I have to listen to it and interpret it properly. It's just about stopping and saying that thought has merit. And being brave enough to use it.

CALGARY. Can anyone really define "white" when it's combined with our race? I am really offended by the continuous reference to "white" when my skin isn't really white. What does the term "white" really tell us about a person. My brother was born in Germany, my mother was born in Quebec, and I'm from St. Stephen, N.B.

I am outraged and ask that this definition of "white" be stricken from the dictionary as all my ancestors, friends, family and colleagues are all Canadian. ALLAN P. JOBSON

Arizona law adds a real life element

Writer and director Robert Rodriguez admits he couldn't have asked for better timing for Machete, as it comes just months after Arizona passed its controversial immigration law.

"When you make an exploitation film you always want to have a real issue," he says. "That's how they were always done. Exploitation films were famous for taking an issue and exploiting it because they could move much faster than a studio. Any hot topic, they could run out and make a movie and make a buck on it."

While immigration has always been a hot-button topic in Arizona the current events have raised the temperature on the situation.

"Just recently this just became more relevant and just gave this movie another layer of entertainment," he says. "It's done in a huge sense of fun. It's supposed to make you feel, 'Wow, some of this is really not far off the mark.' Even though I tried to make it as much made up as possible, you couldn't escape that reality is stranger than fiction."

After 14 years Machete makes the cut

NED

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Danny Trejo feels like he's been preparing to play the title character in Machete for 14 years — about as long as he's been working with writer/director Robert Rodriguez.

"Robert's been training me for this movie since we did Desperado, says Trejo, who's appeared in eight of Rodriguez's films. "He said, 'Hey, you're perfect for this character. I want to do this movie called Machete. And that was 14 years ago. And so, you know, 14 years and 780,000 phone calls later — 'When are we doing Machete?' — it was just like stepping into the guy."

And from his first role with Rodriguez — as the knife-throwing assassin Navajas in Desperado — Trejo has noticed a common theme in their collaboration: "Basically in each movie, if you'll notice, I have some sharp object," he says with a laugh.

A veteran character actor who's appeared on screen close to 200 times, Trejo gets to finally play the lead in Machete, something he was excited about.

"As far as being the lead, the only difference is

I got to kiss Jessica Alba," he jokes. "It's a little different because usually you show up, you do your stuff and you leave. But now you're on the set every day. You're on the set every day and you have to realize that this is your movie. It's not that your attitude is different or your performance is different. It's that you just help any way you can."

While the idea for Machete came about years ago, the character first appeared on screen as something of a gag. Rodriguez filmed a trailer for the non-existent film as part of his Grindhouse project with Quentin Tarantino, sandwiched between Rodriguez's Planet Terror and Tarantino's Death Proof. For Trejo, filming the movie years after making the trailer was more than a little disorienting.

And with Machete already being in the public consciousness — the trailer was one of the most popular parts of Grindhouse — the actor and filmmaker found they had a new set of expectations to worry about.

"I sent Robert a text from England, where some guys had tattooed that picture of Machete on their backs," Trejo remembers. "I thought, 'Wow, I hope they like the movie.'"

Reunited

Kevin Spacey and Sam Mendes are reuniting for a trans-Atlantic production of Richard III, producers announced Thursday. Spacey will play the villainous English king in a production of Shakespeare's play directed by Mendes. The two men last worked together on the 1999 film American Beauty, which won five Academy Awards.

DILLON'S LACK OF STAR POWER SURPRISING

In Focus

RICHARD CROUSE

SCENE@METRONews.CA

He is an Oscar nominee, a multiple Independent Spirit Award winner and the star of over forty movies. He can leap frog comfortably from comedy to drama. In this weekend's Takers he plays a cop hot on the trail of some bank robbers. Next he'll be seen yukking it up in Rio Sex Comedy. He can do it all, and on top of that he has at least one IMDb message board titled "Hottest Man Alive," so why is Matt Dillon the forgotten movie star? With credits like his he should be on the A-list, hobnobbing with the Toms — Hanks and Cruise — and Will Smith and yet his brother Kevin, who plays a wannabe celebrity on Entourage, probably has a higher Q score. Here's a look back at why Matt Dillon should be on Hollywood's hot list.

Troubled Youth

Dillon first got noticed playing troubled teens in Over the Edge, My Bodyguard, Little Darlings and Liar's Moon but it was the screen adaptations of

Dillon's Films

A selected filmography of Matt Dillon, who stars in Takers which opens Friday.

- ▶ Over the Edge (1979)
- ▶ The Outsiders (1983)
- ▶ Rumble Fish (1983)
- ▶ The Flamingo Kid (1984)
- ▶ Drugstore Cowboy (1989)
- ▶ Singles (1992)
- ▶ To Die For (1995)
- ▶ Beautiful Girls (1996)
- ▶ There's Something About Mary (1998)
- ▶ Wild Things (1998)
- ▶ Crash (2004)

three S.E. Hinton novels that made him a star. Tex, The Outsiders (where he shared the screen with Tom Cruise, Rob Lowe and Patrick Swayze) and Rumble Fish made him a teen idol, but also earned him some serious fans as well. Roger Ebert wrote that Dillon has "the kind of clarity, the uncluttered relationship with the camera that you see in only a handful of actors."

He's Really Blossomed

He was typecast as a brooding teen early on but breakout roles in several comedies proved he could more than just a gloomy Gus. In There's Something About Mary he used one of the most all time politically incorrect (but hilarious) pick-up lines to woo Cameron Diaz. Even better is Randy, his character in One Night at McCool's. When nice guy Randy's one-night stand lets it slip that her boyfriend is a killer who might come after them, he doesn't run but in a beautiful bit of understatement says, "It's just the sex and the violence all in one night is a little much."

Wild Things

On the dramatic side he is an Oscar nominee for his work as the racist cop in Crash, an award winner for his realistic portrayal of a drug addict in Drugstore Cowboy and he steamed up the screen as the high school counselor in the campy Wild Things. The guy can do it. Why isn't he a bigger star?

See it twice ⑤⑤⑤⑤ | See it now ⑤⑤⑤⑤ | Worth watching ⑤⑤⑤ | Yawn ⑤⑤ | Don't bother ⑤

Interesting experiment

The Last ExorcismGenre: Horror/Thriller
Director: Daniel StammStars: Patrick Fabian, Ashley Bell, Iris Bahr
⑤⑤⑤

Producer Eli Roth (Hostel 1 & 2, Cabin Fever) has claimed that his latest cinematic venture The Last Exorcism was meant to be anything but a rip-off of William Friedkin's immortal 1973 shocker The Exorcist. But if he thinks his film doesn't have its roots firmly ensconced in that classic, he's out to lunch; for just as in The Exorcist, we have a central "holy man" figure having a crisis of faith who is called into action when a little girl is seemingly possessed by some class of demon. And yes, substances and swear words do indeed spill out of mouths in both pictures.

What makes The Last Exorcism different is the framing conceit, a pseudo-documentary, first person camera approach that is meant to immerse the audience into the action and further blur the lines between fact and fiction. It's an interesting experiment, applying a post — Blair Witch sheen to a familiar and oft abused genre trope and it almost works.

The problem at the core of The Last Exorcism lies in that first person point-of-view; the film has such strong performances, austere cinematography, rich music and the story is so fanciful that the intentional sloppiness of the camerawork ultimately distracts rather than engages.

● CHRIS ALEXANDER

Flipped*Genre: Comedy
Director: Rob Reiner
Stars: Madeline Carroll, Rebecca De Mornay, Callan McAuliffe, Aidan Quinn
⑤⑤⑤

Flipped — Rob Reiner's latest has been billed as a return to form for the director and a companion piece to his Stand By Me.

Like that film, Flipped is a coming-of-age ode to youth cloaked in mid-century Americana (the early 1960s). It's nostalgic for nostalgia. There's charm here and some honest observations of adolescence. But there's also a wilful, cloying datedness to the movie — overly stuffed with period detail like an Archie comic strip. It tracks a boy (Callan McAuliffe) and a girl (Madeline Carroll) from 7-years-old to 13, and all the fluctuating emotions in between.

The strength of Flipped is in its trueness to hum-drum adolescence. It's filled not with extravagant dramas, but instead portrays how seemingly minor happenings take on grand meaning. But it lacks both the darkness and comedy of Stand By Me and its device of flipping every scene to show both kids' perspective drags the film.

Life During Wartime*Genre: Drama
Director: Todd Solondz
Stars: Shirley Henderson, Allison Janney, Paul Reubens
⑤⑤⑤

Like everything by writer/director Todd Solondz, Life During Wartime walks a line between comedy and tragedy. The characters (mostly taken from his 1998 acidic comedy masterpiece Happiness) are all suffering from damaged pasts that prevent them from truly enjoying life. It's a condition many share and while Solondz mines their personal anguish for uneasy laughs, he never looks down on the characters. We share their pain and every laugh will stick in your throat. ● PHIL BROWN

Teenage Paparazzo*Genre: Documentary
Director: Adrian Grenier
Stars: Adrian Grenier, Paris Hilton
⑤⑤⑤

In Teenage Paparazzo, actor Adrian Grenier explores the invasive circus of celebrity photo-hounds that invade his real and fictional life on HBO's Entourage. Having "a hard time seeing them as regular people", Grenier slowly discovers another side of the subculture once he starts trailing a 13-year old Hollywood paparazzo. An insightful look behind the curtain, the film offers a unique twist when the kid pap finds fame himself due to Grenier's doc.

● STEVE GOW

Takers*Genre: Action
Director: John Luessenhop
Stars: Chris Brown, Matt Dillon, T.I., Paul Walker
⑤½

If you've seen any heist movie before, then you've already seen Takers. The script that somehow required four writers follows every possible genre cliché and then adds some tired cop drama with Matt Dillon for good measure. Admittedly, director John Luessenhop has some impressive action saved for the climax, but it's just not enough to make up for the irritating performances and terrible screenplay (favourite/worst line: "We're takers, man. That's what we do. We take.").

● PHIL BROWN

The Human Centipede*Genre: Horror/Comedy
Director: Tom Six
Stars: Dieter Laser, Ashley C. Williams, Ashlynn Yennie
⑤⑤⑤

So much sensational ink has been spilled about director Tom Six's outrageous shocker The Human Centipede that there's a danger that it might not live up to the horrible hype. Rest assured it does. The already notorious picture sees a lunatic German scientist (Dieter Laser) create the titular beast by sewing three unlucky victim's mouths and anus' together. ● CHRIS ALEXANDER

The Tillman Story*Genre: Documentary
Director: Amir Bar-Lev
Stars: Pat Tillman, Mary Tillman, Donald Rumsfeld
⑤⑤⑤

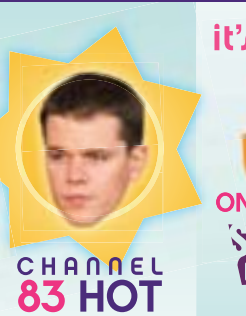

A thoughtful and well-researched documentary about the NFL star turned Iraq War casualty Pat Tillman. Amir Bar-Lev crafts a devastating portrayal of how the government blatantly lied to the American public as well as the Tillman family about Pat's death when they made him a martyr for a controversial war. Much of what is covered in The Tillman Story has admittedly been said before, but never so concisely or effectively.

PARANORMAL HOME INSPECTION

Do you hear things that go bump in the night?

Are there unexplained things that go on in your home? Strange noises, weird occurrences, items out of place? Do you have a ghost in your home?

If you need help to explain the unexplainable in your home Paranormal Home Inspection wants to hear from you!

From the producers of the hit series Love It or List It, Paranormal Home Inspection is a new paranormal series for HGTV that will bring in the professionals to inspect your home. Is the house haunted or could it be the poor plumbing or faulty foundation? We'll be able to tell you what's happening in your home but who will you believe?

Please visit www.bigcoatproductions.com to download an application or contact ssatar@bigcoatproductions.com

The Twilight Saga: Eclipse (PG) Fri-Thu 10:45-1:35-4:20-7:25-10:15

DURHAM

▶ Along with younger fans, some moms find Robert Pattinson dreamy.

Moms lusting over the boys of Twilight

Jill Ettesse was hooked on the Twilight books the second she cracked the series opener. She ripped through the saga on paper and rented movie No. 1.

Then the madness began.

"I joined the lines of teens for New Moon," said the 38-year-old mom of two. "My husband is deathly embarrassed. Half my friends think I'm crazy."

Ettesse, from Leesburg, Va., won't let her eight-year-old daughter anywhere near Team Edward OR Team Jacob, but did she take herself to Eclipse this summer? "Oh yeah."

Is there something, um, icky about moms lusting after the boys of Twilight or other morsels of ripe screen candy? Heck, no, said 54-year-old Toni Downey of Limerick, Pa. We're not dead yet!

Downey's more into Matt Bomer, 32, of TV's White Collar at the moment, but "I've had impure thoughts about barely legal boys as well." Strictly the celebrity look-don't-touch variety, she notes.

Eighteen-year-old Taylor Lautner's six-pack? "Mind-boggling," said Downey, who has a 25-year-old daughter. "She likes Buffy as her only vamp thing, and we both thought Pattinson was hotter as a blond in Harry Potter."

Into the light they've come, publicly declaring their sometimes puzzled joy, juggling movie schedules with diaper changes, kid lunches and soccer practices. They're definitely looking forward with younger fans to the last two Twilight movies starting next year, and they're scooping up all sorts of reads intended for the young.

"I have no idea why it's so appealing to me," Ettesse said. "I'm married to a tall, dark and handsome French-Irish guy, but those abs, you know. I'd trade a pair of my Jimmy C's for my husband to have those."

In June, 30-year-old mom Christina Fiedler was undaunted by a tent city of young people on her way in to a special screening of Eclipse at a Los Angeles theatre. She's not all that much older than 24-year-old Robert Pattinson and his mid-20s Cullen kin, played by Kellan Lutz and Jackson Rathbone, but her mom status makes her feel light-years their senior, especially since they're all supposed to be teens on screen.

"What an odd experience to be an adult woman in a theatre full of screaming tweens," said Fiedler, who has a two-year-old son and has blogged about her Twilight habit at Mom Logic. "I didn't go with my Team Jacob or Team Edward shirt like some of the women my crushes," she said, adding that she's a bit of a cougar on the ground. "Taylor Lautner isn't on my list because he's only 18 and I still think of him as Shark Boy."

Martinez first heard of the Twilight saga when she learned the bedroom-eyed Pattinson was cast as Edward. "He's the reason I read the books. There's just something irresistible about him. I'll continue to lust over and enjoy them on the big screen long after the teens move on to the next big thing."

She has others, not just the Twilight crew. There's Jake Gyllenhaal, who at 29 was "a nice piece of summer eye candy" in Prince of Persia. Downey especially liked the Entertainment Weekly spread featuring Bomer pouring a jug of water over his head, nicely soaking his white T-shirt.

"And he and his character have a pinch of naughty in the devastating smile," she said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I didn't go with my Team Jacob or Team Edward shirt like some of the women my age did. There were quite a few of them. I didn't talk back to the screen like they did."

age did. There were quite a few of them. I didn't talk back to the screen like they did."

Is there an age cutoff of appropriateness? A mom code when it comes to ogling young hunks?

Single mom Victoria Martinez, 37, in Hemet, Calif., said yes. She has three boys of her own, ages 15, 14 and 11, and won't let her mind wander to jail bait. The Cullen clan may be playing teens, but they're way legal in life so it's full steam ahead.

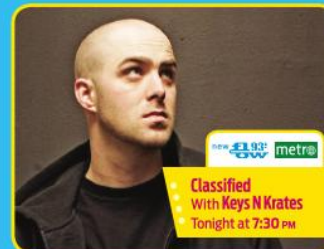

"I don't have a husband or even a significant other to worry about when it comes to my man candy

So where's your Emmy?

Jon Stewart once joked that he would use his Emmy statuette to prop up the sinking foundation of his house.

Most Emmy winners, though, tend to keep their trophies in a special place indoors.

As nominees gear up for Sunday's 62nd annual ceremony, a look at where past winners keep their coveted hardware.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Helen Mirren

A four-time winner (Prime Suspect in 1995 and 2006; The Passion of Ayn Rand in 1999 and Elizabeth I in 2005): "I've got one in England and I've got one here (in the United States), and I guess ... I don't know where it is. "The one that I have here is, actually, in my office in New York. But the one in England — I think it's in my living room. I can't remember."

Jennifer Aniston

She won in 2002 for Friends: She had kept that Emmy and another award on a shelf in her office. "I thought, 'How do I make good use of them?' So, they're bookends."

Bette Midler

Her Emmys include a 1992 trophy for outstanding individual performance on the penultimate airing of The Tonight Show starring Johnny Carson: "My three Emmys are in the city, in New York, in my home. I don't display them. I just have them in a cupboard somewhere. I'm very proud of them. But the thing that I'm most proud of is my Johnny Carson. I have a photograph of me and Johnny Carson, the last night. And that's the only thing I display."

Wayne Brady

He won an Emmy in 2003 for Whose Line Is It Anyway?: "I keep it downstairs in my library. And I keep it there because I visit my books all the time, because I'm an avid reader. ... I know that some people will give you the modest, 'I use it as a doorstop.' No, I earned that!"

Holland Taylor

She won in 1999 as outstanding supporting actress on The Practice: "Well, at one time, I, with great arrogance, actually did use it as a doorstop. And somebody said, 'Holland, that's disgusting.' And I suddenly saw that it was. ... So, it now is on a little shelf with family pictures in my bedroom."

Emmy show really wants your attention

- It's time to renegotiate the broadcast rights ► Ratings will be crucial
- Broadcast networks or cable?

When the Emmy Awards air Sunday, more is at stake than whether 30 Rock wins its fourth consecutive best-series trophy, Mad Men its third or Glee its first.

A crucial tally will be the ratings — ammunition for either the big four networks or the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences as the two sides negotiate a new contract for the telecast.

The current agreement, reached in 2002 and expiring this year, created an annual network rotation that brought the ceremony to ABC, CBS, Fox and NBC, and gave the TV academy a huge boost in its license fees.

Now the Emmy show has a chance to prove that it's riding a wave that has lifted other awards broadcasts this year, with viewership up for shows including the Oscars, the Golden Globes and the Grammys.

But what Emmy organizers also might covet is a counteroffer. Eight years ago, cable's HBO made a splash by bidding to wrest away the ceremony with a $10 million annual license fee when the networks were offering $3.3 million.

"Nothing can help your negotiation more than if you have another offer on the table," said writer-producer Bryce Zabel, who was academy chairman and CEO at the time.

"We had a strong argument that the license fee should go up, but it made it easier to achieve with another offer."

Networks ultimately agreed to an eight-year deal with license fees of $4.5 million annually for the first four years and $7.5 million per year for the next four.

► Jimmy Fallon, who hosts the Emmys on Sunday, says the awards show belongs on the broadcast networks.

The academy and the networks declined comment on current negotiations.

But broadcast executives were surprised at the academy's proposal, given ceremony ratings in recent years according to two people with knowledge of the talks. The individuals, who lacked authority to comment publicly and spoke on condition of anonymity, said the academy was seeking to keep fees in the $7.5 million range.

So far, there has been no overt interest shown in the Emmys by HBO or major basic cable networks, such as Turner's TNT or TBS.

Dallas hits home stretch

► City and Colour headlines Molson Amphitheatre ► Singer-songwriter needs a break after a year of touring

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Dallas Green promises that sometime next year he will record another City and Colour album. For now though he's on vacation. "I've got enough songs for the record," he says on the phone from his Toronto home, "But if I recorded them now I'd have a nervous breakdown. I need some time to myself."

The singer-songwriter, who made it big as the guitarist and vocalist in Alexisonfire and as a dreamy-voiced solo artist, has been on the go almost non stop for the last year. When he wasn't touring with Alexisonfire he'd play City and Colour shows; August was the first month he had off.

"At some point people decided music wasn't important enough to pay for it. That's a bummer for me because I work really hard."

DALLAS GREEN

All that touring hasn't allowed him to write songs as quickly as he'd like. Green says he needs to spend time crafting a tune — he can't just churn them out.

"I don't understand the people who say they write a song every day," he says. "I never do that. I don't even think it's a good idea to write a song every day — I'd end up writing a bunch of s—."

While he has music for a new disc, he's waiting until January to enter the studio. He says he may write a few new songs between now and then, but he's adamant about not overloading the record with needless tracks.

"I don't want to hear a record that has 15 songs on it," he says. "That's asking too much for the listener, especially now when attention spans are so short."

Fortunately, his fans do want to hear more than 15 songs from him, at least when he plays live.

That's why he's headlining Toronto's Molson Amphitheatre for the first time on Saturday. "That will be neat," he says. "I've never gotten to play when it was dark out there."

It's also been two years since he played Toronto, and he's excited for the hometown show. Expect two new songs, and a track he wrote about the BP oil spill.

"I was reading a ton about it and it crept into my subconscious and I wrote a song about it," he says.

Teams with Shad

Just because Dallas Green is taking it easy in August doesn't mean he's not working. The songwriter did make it into the studio this month, albeit for an unlikely reason — to work with Toronto-based rapper Shad.

"I'm a huge hip-hop fan and had a secret dream of being an R&B singer," he says. "And he helped me live out my dream."

The pair recorded two songs — Shad raps and Green sings. The songs won't appear on the next City and Colour disc, they're likely release it as a 12-inch two song vinyl, and on iTunes, instead.

"That's the great thing about the Internet," he says. "If I know a rapper, come up with an idea for him, we can record it and put it out on iTunes. That's neat." METRO

IN MOSCOW

After weeks of punishing heat, choking smoke from wildfires and withering crops, the Russian drought of 2010 ended Wednesday night.

That's the good news. The bad news is that it ended with a monsoon-level rainstorm just as U2 started their first-ever show in Moscow. With Beautiful Day, naturally.

That U2 was in Russia in the first place was a miracle. While Western bands playing here is nothing new — if memory serves, The Dirt Band was the first back in about 1977 — a production the size of the 360 Tour required intense negotiations all the way up to the diplomatic level.

Hey, you try and get 200 trucks worth of gear into this country, not to mention all the necessary visas and work permits. Suffice to say there were lots of older men in shiny suits in the VIP boxes. One of them was Mikhail Gorbachev, too.

Then there's the matter of U2's position on things like universal human rights, political freedoms, freedom of expression and help for AIDS patients — all touchy subjects for their Russian hosts. How would all that go over?

At first, things seemed fine. Before the show, Bono flew to Sochi for tea with President Medvedev. Russian media reported they talked about all those things near and dear to Bono's heart. Even then I was surprised to see booths for Amnesty International, Greenpeace and One outside the stadium.

Bold stuff, considering that the police and military presence at the show was large enough to repatriate a breakaway Soviet republic in an afternoon.

Alas, the police soon moved in and shut down all the booths despite previous assurances that they would be undisturbed. "Unlawful pickets," they said. Two people were apparently arrested. Bono didn't say anything about this from the stage, although he did stick to his regular political and human rights messages without being censored.

The show itself was a two-hour hit fest and if the rain bothered the crowd, they didn't show it. I did feel a bit sad for the woman next to me wearing the $900 suede Prada pumps. That'll learn her.

Read more about U2 in Moscow at exploremusic.com. And if you're in the Toronto area, I'll be doing a rare live interview with STP's Scott Weiland at The Bay at Yonge and Queen this Sunday at 2:30 p.m. as part of an English Laundry apparel event.

Little Big Town back with new album, outlook

If ever there was a group with plenty of reason to pitch it in and give up, it's Little Big Town.

The quartet with the sweet harmonies, uncommon versatility and Job-like bad luck released its fourth album, The Reason Why, this week. Its members have been rocked by a personal difficulties and unfortunate business twists and turns that always seemed to come just as the group appeared to be gaining momentum on its move to the loftier reaches of country music.

Yet as Karen Fairchild, Kimberly Schlapman, Jimi Westbrook and Phillip Sweet approach their 12th year together, they've never felt more positive that all their troubles are behind them and the best times are near. They've been opening for Sugarland in front of big crowds and they hope their fourth record on their fourth label, The Reason Why, will push them to their own headliner status.

"As we wrote and we recorded, that was our goal. Definitely. We pushed ourselves harder than we ever have," Schlapman said.

STYLE@METRONWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Just in time for the upcoming collections, three major fashion books are due to hit stores this fall. And in remembrance of past fashion hits, there's a classic book in the mix.

Blow by Blow by Detmar Blow and Tom Sykes (Harper Collins)

Arguably the most anticipated of the bunch, Blow by Blow is a biography of the tragic fashion icon written by her husband Detmar Blow and Tom Sykes. The book will cover her life from the beginning up until her suicide and include moments from her legendary career, which included stints as Anna Wintour's assistant at American Vogue, fashion director of Tatler and the impetus to Alexander McQueen's career.

Manolo's New Shoes by Manolo Blahnik (Monacelli Press)

Manolo's New Shoes, by the man himself, features 130 drawings of his work in addition to written contributions from Suzy Menkes, Amy Fine Collins and Grace Coddington, to name a few. Blahnik will be signing copies of the book at Liberty of London during Fashion's Night Out.

Luella's Guide To English Style by Luella Bartley (Fourth Estate Ltd.)

A former journalist, Luella

► There are plenty of fashion-related books on the horizon to get you ready for the runway.

Bartley returns to her roots with Luella's Guide to English Fashion. As the title suggests, it explores Britain's great fashion moments from corsets to Kate Moss. The author explains it best: "My aim is ... (to) show my unerring appreciation and devotion to those contrived subtleties, and that blatant contrariness that makes British women so staggeringly adept in the art of expression through style..."

The Beautiful Fall by Alicia Drake (Back Bay Books)

No fashion lover's coffee table is complete without this classic. Fashion journalist Alicia Drake chronicles the careers of Yves Saint Laurent and Karl Lagerfeld and their rivalry. Starting with their professional beginnings in 1950s Paris through to their heady get-rich disco days in the 1970s, the biography is rich in fashion trivia and juicy dish.

► R&B singer and booking agent to pay $156,000 for blotched concert

A Maryland judge has ordered R&B singer Ne-Yo and his booking agent to pay more than $156,000 in damages because the performer failed to appear at a 2008 New Year's Eve concert in Washington state.

Anne Arundel County Circuit Judge Philip Carroll ordered the payment Tuesday after a four-day trial in late July and early August.

Promoter Kenyohn Clark sued Ne-Yo, whose real name is Shaffer

Smith, and promoter Mike Esterman, who is based in Maryland. The judge ruled in favour of Clark, who claimed that Esterman misled him and failed to return a $95,000 deposit.

Court documents show Ne-Yo testified at trial that he knew in his "heart of hearts" that the deposit should have been returned.

Liquor is quicker for thrilling grill

► What's Iron Chef Masaharu Morimoto's barbecue secret ingredient? ► A sake-spiked marinade, of course ► Boozy abounds in marinade options

Like many other chefs looking to add a little thrill to the grill, Iron Chef Masaharu Morimoto heads to the liquor cabinet. Because rum, tequila and other liquors all do a fine job of getting meat ready to face the fire.

As Elizabeth Karmel, known for her grill skills, puts it: Never marinate your food in something you wouldn't drink.

"I cook a lot with booze. It makes everything taste better and really gives food a fabulous depth of flavour," said Karmel, executive chef of Hill Country

Barbecue Market and the soon-to-open Hill Country Chicken, both in New York City. "Food is so much about fun and who wouldn't want a tequila sunrise marinated chicken, right? And so many of the flavours in a tequila sunrise cocktail are the same flavours that we would use in, for example, a marinade."

Morimoto, who appears on the Food Network's Iron Chef America (he also was a star of the original Japanese Iron Chef show), demonstrated his techniques recently at his new restaurant on the Napa riverfront.

He sprinkled sake over pork loin, stabbing the pearly pink meat with chopsticks and then immersing it in a marinade including mirin, a type of rice cooking wine, and sake.

And don't worry, the alcohol cooks away in the heat. This also means that when you're done you can pair the dish with whatever you like, including wine.

Michael Paley, chef of Proof on Main in Louisville, Ky., takes a locavore approach to liquor. He brines pork loin overnight in a bourbon-based brine.

Being in Louisville, "we're fortunate to be surrounded by some of the best bourbon producers in the world," he said.

You don't want to use top-shelf booze for the marinade, of course. Save that for what you pour for yourself.

Matchings

So how do you match liquor with meat? Karmel usually uses lighter alcohols and citrus flavours with white meats and more robust alcohols and flavours with darker meats.

► "But that said, one of my favourite marinades is a Jack Daniels and coke marinade that I use on a pork chop," she said.

► Other flavours she likes are vodka-based marinades for fish, pork, beef or even grilled fruit, and rum-based soaks for grilled fruits, summer veggies, shellfish, tuna, chicken or pork.

Beer, chili and burgers

► When Rachael Ray wants big flavour in a burger, she thinks small, itty-bitty bite sized servings

Though Rachael Ray considers herself an equal opportunity eater when it comes to burger varieties, her favourites are the trendy two- and three-bite versions.

Ingredients:

- 1 kg (2 lb) ground sirloin
- Montreal Steak Seasoning (by McCormick)
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) Worcestershire sauce
- 5 ml (1 tsp) dried marjoram
- 5 ml (1 tsp) dried thyme
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) ancho chili powder
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) beer
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) vegetable oil
- Barbecue sauce (see recipe on at Metronews.ca/food)
- 10 small burger rolls
- Spicy kirby cucumber slices (see recipe on at Metronews.ca/food)
- Oil-and-vinegar slaw (see recipe on at Metronews.ca/food)

"I make so many different types of burgers it's unfair to play favourites," Ray said in an email interview. "But I do believe the best burgers come in slider size. I am slider obsessed. They are easy to hold, easier to cook perfectly and the bun never gets soggy."

Ray offered a ground sirloin slider jammed with flavour from Worcestershire sauce, herbs, ancho chili powder and — for good measure — beer.

Preparation:

- 1 Heat a grill to medium.
- 2 In a large bowl, combine meat with steak seasoning (or salt and pepper). Add Worcestershire, marjoram, thyme, chili powder and beer. Mix.
- 3 Form mixture into 10 slider-sized (use your rolls as

Grilled Shrimp With Watermelon

Preparation:

- 1 Glaze: In a 2 to 3 l (2 to 3 qt) saucepan, heat oil over medium-high heat. Sauté garlic, ginger and lemon grass for a few minutes. Reduce heat to low and stir in vermouth, soy sauce, watermelon and sugar.

Ingredients:

- 30 ml (2 tbsp) olive oil
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) minced fresh ginger or 5 ml (1 tsp) ground ginger
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) minced fresh lemon grass or 5 ml (1 tsp) dry shredded

- 50 ml (1/4 cup) extra-dry vermouth
- 10 ml (2 tsp) soy sauce, or to taste
- 250 ml (1 cup) watermelon purée
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) sugar
- 1 kg (2 lb) peeled deveined medium shrimp, skewered

- 2 Divide mixture in two, setting aside half for serving as glaze/drizzle. Note: Do not mix liquid from the two halves to avoid contaminating the glaze/drizzle.

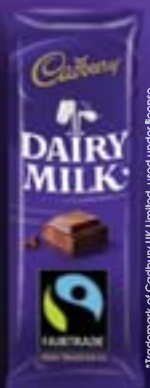

- 3 Over medium-high heat, grill skewered shrimp, basting occasionally until shrimp are cooked and opaque, about 5 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Rebels without a cycle

► Jasper — Canada's 'other' Rocky Mountain Park — is the go-to place for those who want to take a ride on the wild side

► Visitors to Jasper feel the freedom of a chauffeured sidecar tour alongside the Athabasca River in Alberta.

Any real rebel knows that it takes more than an odd haircut and a leather jacket to become a rebel. And it certainly takes more than going down to your local video store and renting Easy Rider.

To be a real rebel, you have to get off the beaten track and take the road less travelled.

And there's no better place to do that than in Jasper, Canada's "other" Rocky Mountain park.

But even for weekend rebels, it takes more than riding in an air-conditioned coach to truly experience the Canadian Rockies. For that, sometimes you need a motorcycle — preferably a Harley or a Honda — that makes you feel like part of the wild, not merely an observer.

But, of course, not everyone has a bike. And not everyone who has one can bring it to Jasper. So for we Rebels Without A Cycle, there is Jasper Motorcycle Tours.

For the past four years, the company has become the go-to place for rebels without a cycle — and even for would-be rebels who have decided that for once in their lives they're going to take a ride on the wild side.

If I'd had my motorcycle licence, I could have rented a bike and leather gear and hit the open road looking like James Dean in Rebel Without A Cause or Marlon Brando in The Wild One. OK, maybe more like Dennis Hopper in Flashback.

But the truth is, I'm not the real motorcyclist in the family. That would have been my grandfather, Harrison Richardson, famously known in the Royal Army Service Corps as Blackpool One. He got the nickname when he became the premier dispatch rider, running to and from the front lines during The Battle of Dunkirk. Now, there was a motorcyclist.

I never really inherited the intrepid motorcyclist's gene. The closest I ever got to being a real biker was riding a motor scooter through Taiwan traffic that felt like Death Race 2000.

So for me, renting my own motorbike and heading for the hills was out of the question. However, I was most fortunate to get Candace Ellis, manager of Jasper Motorcycle Tours, to be my guide and give me a taste of a real wild ride.

Dressed in a leather jacket and chaps, I sat in the sidecar, feeling like Robin next to Batgirl, or perhaps one of those Hollywood Second World War generals, who always seem to be chauffeured around in a motorcycle sidecar.

Riding with Ellis, I was the envy of all those driving by in their cars and buses. I got the feel of riding on the open road — the wind in my hair, the sun on my face and the bugs in my teeth — while still being able to look around and take pictures.

In our case, we really did want to take the road less travelled: Highway 93A — part of the old Jasper-Banff Highway that winds its way down the Athabasca Valley, following the contours of the land and getting up close and personal with the wilderness.

Those who take their cars and buses down the modern Icefields Parkway will certainly get the big picture. The beauty of taking

► Five years later, a special, one-year exhibit explores and explains how journalists reported on the Katrina disaster and its aftermath

Covering Hurricane Katrina: Newseum exhibit

Jarring headlines from the Gulf Coast after Hurricane Katrina said it all: "Catastrophic," "Hitting Bottom," "Help Us, Please."

Five years later, the Newseum on Friday will open a special, one-year exhibit, Covering Katrina, that explores and explains how journalists reported on the disaster and its aftermath.

The Newseum assembled the accounts and belongings of journalists, newspaper stories and artifacts from the Louisiana State Museum for what curators believe is the first major exhibit on news coverage of Katrina.

About 80 front pages from around the world show how the story unfolded as the storm bore down on Louisiana and Mississippi — and what followed. At the time, newspapers and TV reporters were the only link between the people needing help and the government that could provide it.

"It puts you right there in the middle of the storm...As you recall, the government was slow to respond, but the media wasn't"

CHARLES OVERBY, NEWSEUM CHIEF EXECUTIVE

in the middle of the storm," Newseum chief executive Charles Overby said of the exhibit. "As you recall, the government was slow to respond, but the media wasn't."

The museum about news and the First Amendment also produced a film offering reflections from TV journalists as well as two newspapers that shared the 2006 Pulitzer Prize for public service for their Katrina coverage — the New Orleans Times-Picayune and the Sun Herald of Biloxi and Gulfport, Miss.

The exhibit includes a Gulf Coast map from the Sun Herald newsroom with pins confirming the dead in Mississippi, an anti-looter sign from a New Orleans shop and a rusty axe used by a journalist to break into a colleague's home to rescue pets.

There's even a kayak deployed by a photographer to navigate flooded New Orleans streets and two bicycles used by reporters to first discover the levees had been breached.

"In that flash of a moment, they both realize that we're doomed," Times-Picayune Editor Jim Amoss said in the Newseum film. "The water has broken through the flood walls and that the oceans are rushing into this city."

Editor Stan Tiner at the Sun Herald explains on film that Katrina brought an urgent demand for information. He recalled people leaving a water line when the newspaper truck arrived to clamour for a paper.

"One of the most righteous jobs we did was to deliver the paper," Tiner said.

TFC sign first 'homegrown' player

VINCE TALOTTA/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Doneil Henry grinned and slipped on a red Toronto FC jersey as cameras flashed.

The 17-year-old from Brampton was announced Thursday as the first homegrown player from the Toronto FC Academy to sign a professional contract with the team.

Flanked by Toronto manager Mo Johnston on one side and Academy director Earl Cochrane on the other, the teenage defender soaked in the moment of his young career.

But not without reflecting on the journey that brought him there.

Henry's road to the Major League Soccer club began as a young, energetic boy who broke everything in his parent's house. Out of need to harness his ambitiousness, they enrolled him into a house league soccer program. He played for a year and was an instant success.

When Henry was 10 his coach suggested he move up to "rep."

"I didn't bother to ask what rep was," Beverly Henry laughed while her son answered questions in a television scrum. "That was the beginning of him trying to learn the game."

As a member of Toronto FC Henry will not count against the 24-man roster, filling one of two spots available to Academy players under MLS rules.

In his first tournament since his divorce, Tiger Woods finally looked like the No. 1 player in the world Thursday at the Barclays when he opened with a 6-under 65, his lowest score of the year, to share the lead with Vaughn Taylor.

It was Woods' first time leading after any round on the PGA Tour since the Tour Championship last September.

"It's exciting to hit the ball flush again," Woods said. "It's something I've been missing all year."

He didn't miss much at Ridgewood Country Club. Woods hit all but one fairway and putted for birdie on all but two holes.

And while he hit his driver only twice, they were two of his best shots of the day — including on

Was it just a coincidence that his game showed up so soon after his marriage was dissolved?

"I can't really say that's the case," he said. "As far as golf, it was nice to put it together."

Woods and Taylor had a one-shot lead over Australian Adam Scott, Brian Gay and Ryan Palmer.

The Blue Jays are now 66-61 and sit fourth in the AL East, 12 games back of the Yankees and Rays.

The Blue Jays didn't get their first hit of the game until two outs in the third when Fred Lewis reached on a single to right field. Lewis then swiped second for his 14th steal of the season, but wasn't fast enough when he attempted to take third as Laird gunned him down to end the inning.

Sports in brief

Wie off to strong start

GOLF. Michelle Wie drove in the second hole-in-one of her pro career Thursday on the way to a 7-under-par 65 and a three-shot lead after the first round of the CN Canadian Women's Open.

Sarah Kemp of Australia was three strokes back of Wie after her morning-round 68.

Clemens to be arraigned

MLB. Officials at the U.S. federal courthouse in Washington, D.C., say seven-time Cy Young winner Roger Clemens will be arraigned Monday afternoon on criminal charges.

The former pitcher will appear before U.S. District Judge Reggie Walton for allegedly lying to Congress about his use of steroids.

Soderling in Federer's way

TENNIS. If Roger Federer is going to reach a seventh consecutive U.S. Open title match, he might need to get past the man who ended his Grand Slam semifinal streak. Five-time U.S. Open champion Federer was given a possible quarter-final against two-time French Open runner-up Robin Soderling in Thursday's draw. The No. 5-seeded Soderling upset Federer in the quarter-finals in Paris this year, stopping Federer's record run of reaching at least the semifinals at 23 consecutive Grand Slam tournaments. Canadian squad has plenty of experience

► Question becomes whether coach Stephen Hart will be able to use talent for exhibition games ► Hart must negotiate with his players' clubs

Team Canada

More about the team.

- MIXED The Canadian roster ranges in experience from captain Paul Stalteri, whose 81 caps are one away from tying Randy Samuel's national record, to midfielder Gianluca Zavarise, who has spent all of six minutes on the pitch for the senior team.
- EXPERIENCE Hart has other experience in goalkeeper Lars Hirschfeld, defender-forward Kevin McKenna, midfielders Atiba Hutchinson, Patrice Bernier and Josh Simpson, and forwards Rob Friend and Iain Hume.

Canadian soccer coach Stephen Hart has announced a strong roster for exhibition games against Peru and Honduras.

Just how much he is able to use that talent Sept. 4 against 39th-ranked Peru in Toronto and Sept. 7 against No. 46 Honduras in Montreal will depend on Hart's negotiations with his players' clubs.

For example, Hart has selected captain Dwayne De Rosario, star midfielder Julian De Guzman and steady defender Nana Attakora from Toronto FC, which has games in Dallas on the 4th and Chicago the 8th and is struggling to secure a playoff berth.

Hart elected not to further weaken Toronto's defence, leaving Adrian Cann out of his squad.

"We still have some things to work out with the club," Hart told a conference call Thursday.

"And more than likely we will see how we can help each other on this."

"Other European clubs have asked for the same sort of concessions on their players," he added wryly.

"These things have to be considered."

FIFA has cleared Sept. 3-7 for international matches, but MLS is proceeding as usual and European clubs will no doubt want their players back in time to be ready for weekend matches that follow the international dates.

Canada is riding a seven-game winless streak since defeating El Salvador 1-0 in July 2009 at the Gold Cup.

The team is 0-5-2 since then, has been outscored 14-3 and has dropped to No. 101 in the FIFA rankings.

Hart tried to bring top prospects David (Junior) Hoilett and Teal Bunbury on board for this camp, but both players said they wanted to focus on securing their club position.

Hart said Hoilett, a 20-year-old forward with England's Blackburn Rovers, told him he wasn't ready yet to commit to Canada. While Canadian-born, he is also eligible to play for Jamaica.

► TFC midfielder Julian de Guzman has been selected by Team Canada for September exhibition games.

Gang Green a bleepin' hit

- New York Jets making lots of noise and they're not apologizing for it
- With HBO show in tow, are the Jets the NFL's most entertaining club?

Here's a four-letter word everyone's using these days: J-E-T-S.

When it comes to juicy story lines and colourful personalities, the big-talking, foul-mouthed New York Jets have the perfect cast of characters.

Made for TV? No bleepin' doubt about it.

"This is who we are," said Rex Ryan, the Jets' brash and unabashed coach. "Some people are going to like us and some people are not. At the end of the day, we want to paint an accurate picture of who we are."

Once considered the second NFL team in New York, the Jets are suddenly the most entertaining club in the league — thanks to a surprisingly good 2009, a bunch of off-season moves and, most of all, their turn as TV's newest reality stars.

Millions of viewers have been getting an eyeful and earful of the Jets this summer on HBO's Hard Knocks. The series covers pre-season with the team,

"We're maybe not traditional ... but don't make that mistake in thinking that we're less disciplined than another team" cuss words and all — and there are a lot of them. Snooki and the gang from Jersey Shore? They've got nuthin' on Gang Green.

JETS COACH REX RYAN

"There's certainly a lot of different things going on around here," says veteran quarterback Mark Brunell, who joined the Jets last month.

Among those things: There's Ryan and his players saying whatever's on their minds. A heartthrob quarterback in Mark Sanchez, who's trying to take the next step to stardom in his second year. And aging veterans LaDainian Tomlinson and Jason Taylor looking for one last chance at a Super Bowl. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Your latest big idea may be a bit far fetched for some people's liking but that won't stop you trying to put it into practice.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 The Sun in Virgo will encourage you to do something special, something that gets you noticed by the right people. But don't get carried away: stick to what you are good at.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Hopefully you have got your thinking head on because something wonderful is about to happen and the quicker you react the more you will get from it.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Be extra careful today when travelling and socializing. It's okay to be confident and enthusiastic but don't fall into the trap of believing that nothing can possibly go wrong — because that's the moment it most likely will.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 Friends and colleagues may not approve of what you are up to but since when have you let that kind of thing hold you back?

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 Something positive will happen today but it will have a negative side as well. Fortunately, the Sun in your sign will give you the confidence to face up to the bad as well as the good.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You are

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca thinking deeply about something that up until now you have taken somewhat for granted. That's good, because you of all people need to understand that "good" and "bad" are not absolute terms.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Get rid of the old so you have space for the new. That is the message of the stars for you today and if you follow it there is no limit to what you can do.

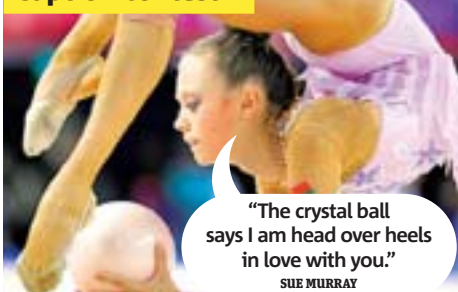

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 If you break the rules you will pay the price — so don't break them. Even a Sagittarian has to toe the line now and again and on the work front especially you are up against forces that cannot be beaten. Be smart.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Everything you say and do has a ripple effect on the world and if you bear that thought in mind today you are less likely to say or do something that hurts other people.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Don't waste time lamenting what might have been because the only thing that matters now is what is going to happen next. Aquarius is supposed to be a forward-looking sign, so think of the future.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Do you really need to let everyone know what you are up to? You stand a much better chance of success today if you keep your aims and ambitions to yourself. SALLY BROMPTON
